Find treasures in the trash of the rich

Driving through America's richest towns on garbage day yields better trash than you'd find at Carmen and Dave's wedding. Make it yours with tips from veteran Dumpster hunters Rustin Wright and Wendy Scher.

THE CLUTTER BUSTER!

Ron Alford helps disposophobics.

"These people fear getting rid of anything," Alford says. Here he recounts how he saved his toughest client ever.

Before "I rate clutter on a one-to-10 scale. Ten is beyond my abilities. This was a 9.5. The person had been evicted. The victim's lawyer said, 'I can't do shit for you.' He sent the person to me."

During "We kept everything of value to the client. Often, however, clients ask for a ball of cat hair but forget about legal papers. They can't make value judgments. I do that for them."

After "Six people did this in three days. We found $7,000 in assets. Clutter begins in the head. I coach clients on behavior modification. Just as you can stop smoking, you can stop cluttering."

Belle Meade, TN Per capita income $104,908
Seek out antiques in this town filled with old estates. "I've gotten tables, desks, dressers; it's all there. And the garbage of the rich is better quality," Wright says.
Trash day Monday

Bloomfield Hills, MI Per capita income $104,920
Look for abandoned artwork by future masters at the town's renowned art academy. "Students aren't inclined to save, so find their trash," Scher says.
Trash day Wednesday

Palm Beach, FL Per capita income $109,219
Almost 60 percent of the designer-dressed town is over the age of 60, creating stockpiles of vintage clothing. "Make Woodlitz your best friend," Wright says.
Trash day Tuesday

Rancho Santa Fe, CA Per capita income $113,132
This small town has 26 golf courses. "Very old clubs can be worthless," Wright warns. But, Scher says, "If you're unsure, a thrift shop will tell you their value."
Trash day Saturday

DWELL IN YOUR DUMP!

Every dump has treasures. The dump in Manila, Philippines, also has people

Manila's 74-acre Payatas dump is home to 70,000 people, who earn one dollar per day selling thrown-away trinkets. And it gets worse: In July 2000, rains weakened Payatas, suffocating more than 200 people in trash.

INSPECTOR GARBAGE

Private investigator and garbologist Bo Diel reveals how to read a person's refuse

Keep your eye on the prize

"Do surveillance," Diel says. "Dress like a homeless person rummaging for cans. No one will think twice about it. If you're dealing with maids or custodians, slip them $10. They don't care where garbage goes."

Get digits

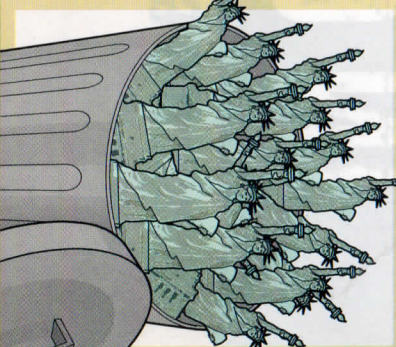

"Paper is the goal," Diel says. "Look for account numbers, phone bills and receipts. Appointment times reveal a schedule if your goal is to get inside the house.

It's all there. Once it hits the curb, it's open game."

Everyone is vulnerable

"I've found a lot of shit in celebrities' garbage: American Express numbers, travel information, drug syringes. People don't realize their trash can put them at risk. The best thing you can do for yourself is use a shredder."
